Good morning Steve,

An LIRR employee who wishes to remain anonymous forwarded the attached Twitter comments to Diversity this morning. The employee states that, according to Twitter user @wehearttrash, Assistant Conductor Steve Rosati attended the Capitol riot on January 6, 2021. As information, it is unclear how Mr. Rosati carried his time on Jan. 6th.

The Twitter user also posted a picture of Mr. Rosatti making a “white power” hand gesture (see antidefamation league website explanation: Okay Hand Gesture | Anti-Defamation League \(adl.org\)) and alleged that Mr. Rosatti and coworker Rob Gassert sell 1776 t-shirts under the company name Clash Brothers United.

Please confirm whether this matter will be handled by the social media policy committee.

Thanks in advance,
Carolyn

The MTA has suspended an LIRR assistant conductor who has espoused right-wing conspiracy theories on social media and who was in Washington during the siege on the Capitol earlier this month.

Steven Rosati, 28, of Lindenhurst, was suspended without pay pending an investigation, the MTA said.

After social media posts surfaced that identified Rosati as being in attendance at the pro-President Donald Trump rally on Jan. 6 that led to a riot, Metropolitan Transportation Authority chairman Patrick Foye said the Long Island Rail Road assistant conductor's conduct "ought to be investigated, and is being investigated."<sup>255</sup>

Rosati also has espoused right-wing conspiracy theories on social media and called people waiting to get COVID-19 tests "idiots." It's unknown if he participated in the riot, and he has not been accused of any wrongdoing. He could not be reached for comment Thursday.

A video posted on Instagram appears to show a masked Rosati outside the Capitol, surrounded by police and protesters.

Rosati has built a following on social media, including with his "UnfilteredConservative" podcast. On the most recent episode, released a day before the riot, Rosati talked about his plan to go to Washington to be part of the effort to prevent Joe Biden from being certified as president.

"They can't get away with it. They can't," Rosati said. "They can't just leave the building and stride to their cars. There's going to be millions of people around them. They're going to be terrified. It is going to scare them that there's millions of us as this is going on. ... What happens if Nancy Pelosi steals this election? You think she's going to go out to her car that night?"

In other videos posted to his TikTok account, Rosati — who is responsible for protecting LIRR riders and enforcing the railroad's face mask policy — chided people waiting in line to get COVID-19 tests for wearing "face diapers" and "falling for a fake pandemic."

"You guys are all idiots," he said to hem.

What he's said on social media is outrageous, despicable, and a sign that he's a jackass," Foye said Thursday.

LIRR president Phillip Eng said the railroad is investigating Rosati's actions "in accordance" with his union's collective bargaining agreement, and that he has been "relieved of his duties."

There are codes of conduct, and it's all part of our investigation," Eng said.

Rosati has been working for the LIRR since June 2018, earning an annual salary of about $64,000.

Anthony Simon, general chairman of Rosati's union, the International Association of Sheet Metal, Air, Rail and Transportation Workers, said he could not comment on an active investigation.
